ROSE

Cortis Scott Rose born March 30, 1929, died April 14, 1940, February 17, 1938, he was admitted to the Masonic Home at Louisville, where he remained until he passed away. He was sick just a little over one year and was happy and contented throughout his sickness. Even though his body was sick he was healthy in his soul. His usual greeting was a smile which was a natural expression of his personality. He was loved by all who knew him.

Surviving him are: his mother; three sisters, Charline, Betty Joe, and Mary Lee; three brothers, Darrell, Harold, and William Marse; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Henry, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his going. Our loss is heaven's gain.

Funeral services were held at Pomp with Reverends Kenneth Clay and Harlen Murphy officiating. Burial in the family cemetery at Pomp.

"I would like to compare his life to a beautiful flower. The most beautiful flowers and most cherished flowers are those that bloom for only a short time and then are gone. So with his life, short but beautiful. Life cut short? No! Bloomed early, bloomed quickly, bloomed beautifully and then transplanted into the garden of our Lord with the picked flowers of all ages. Only the choicest flowers are planted in his garden."

Norway Is Divided by Invaders

German forces in Norway are in complete possession of the southern part of the country, and have established a battle line from the North sea to the Swedish border. The area thus occupied is the most prosperous section of Norway, and includes a number of air bases which will probably be used by planes sent on bombing raids to England.

Besides this, the Germans are fighting in northern Norway against British, French, and Norwegian forces which are contesting the German occupation.

Nazi Foreign Minister Ribbentrop's boast that "German armed forces will see to it that for the duration of this war no Englishman or Frenchman will any longer put in an appearance in Norway or Denmark" proved to be a vain boast, at least so far as Norway is concerned. The German command has admitted that British troops are in Norway, but claims that the points occupied by the British are of no importance. Sour grapes, perhaps.

PACK HORSE LIBRARY

The Pack Horse Library is still located in Floyd Arnett's building across from Nickell hospital.

The library is open from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. every day of the week except Saturday, for those who want to get reading material. We welcome the people of Morgan to the library at these hours.

We are sorry to say but because of insufficient funds there have been three of the workers taken off. We hope they will soon be back with us. This leaves fifteen workers; two in the office all the time and the other thirteen who work out in the different parts of the county.

The following people donated to our library this month: Mrs. H. B. Cox of Pomp, 14 magazines; Mrs. Opal McKenzie of West Liberty, 3 magazines; Mrs. Pearl Caskey of West Liberty, 1 magazine; Mrs. Juanita Johnson of West Liberty, 2 magazines; Miss Nell Welch of Pomp, 10 magazines; Andy Johnson of West Liberty, 1 book. We received 47 books from the NYA shop, which are appreciated very much. They were mostly books for children.

We had two visitors one day this month. One was from Columbia and the other from Louisville. They saw the sign, Pack Horse Library. They didn't know what the words all meant, so they came in to ask questions about the kind of work we were doing. That was the first time they had been in a WPA Pack Horse Library. They were very much interested in this work.

This is the only public library in Morgan county. It has furnished reading material for people who had had no chance to read before this work started.

VACANCY AT CANEY

To whom this may concern: Several people living in and around Caney have asked me if there will be an examination required to fill the position of postmaster at Caney, the former postmaster having resigned. I will say that the office paid approximately $850 last year; therefore there will be a civil service examination called for the purpose of establishing an eligible list from which to select the postmaster. Anyone who has lived in the delivery of the office 12 months is eligible to take the examination. Civil service examinations are called for all offices that pay as much as $500 in any one year.

LYNN B. WELLS, Postmaster West Liberty, Ky.

SAFETYGRAMS

Pedestrians often walk into trouble; it is not always the automobile driver who is to blame for accidents. Approximately 41 percent of the fatalities to pedestrians in 1939 were the result of the pedestrian's crossing a street or highway between intersections.

In rural areas, about 38 percent of the pedestrians killed were walking in the roadway when struck. In cities, 42 percent were crossing at an intersection and, of course, about one-fourth were crossing against the signal or diagonally.

Safety men believe there are three underlying personal causes of these accidents: (1) bodily defects, (2) lack of knowledge or skill, and (3) improper attitude.

Communities have much to do to educate the pedestrian in the proper method of walking. Schools are doing a very fine piece of work in this respect, but too often parents are inclined not to follow the advice of their children, who tell them that they are taught the correct way and the correct place to cross streets. This is the improper attitude and accounts for a considerable share of the pedestrian toll.

It's smart to "walk" carefully.

FARMERS' COLUMN

NATIVE FRUIT NEGLECTED

Although home orchards are notoriously neglected and unproductive, a good supply of fruit can be grown with satisfaction on most farms in Kentucky. So declares Prof. A. J. Olney, head of the department of horticulture at the state college of agriculture, in a circular on "Planning and Planting an Orchard." Plantings have not been sufficient to replace the old orchards that are going out of production, he says.

So far as commercial fruit production is concerned, Prof. Olney advises careful consideration of conditions in the country as a whole. In many places, however, he sees opportunities to produce apples for local sales and markets.

SOYBEANS MAY PAY

On bottom lands, particularly overflow bottoms, soybeans may be produced profitably in Kentucky, says Prof. E. J. Kinney of the state college of agriculture. On most Kentucky uplands, yields in the past have averaged only 12 to 15 bushels to the acre, which would not return much profit at present prices of soybeans. Figures given by Prof. Kinney indicate that it costs about $14 an acre to grow soybeans. In cornbelt states, where most of the soybeans are grown, yields average 20 to 25 bushels. Good yields are obtained only where soils are quite retentive of moisture, which Prof. Kinney says is not the case on the better uplands in Kentucky, especially in the bluegrass.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

Nineteen electric brooders are in use in Garrard county this year.

Five purebred bulls recently were imported into Bell county, with three more paid for.

In Simpson county, a local bank is sponsoring buying purebred sheep for 4-H club members.

In Hancock county six grade bulls have been replaced with registered animals.

Approximately 100,000 strawberry plants have been procured by Marshall county farmers.

Besides insuring 3,250 sheep, the Bath county protective association is importing western ewes and sponsoring a "sheep care and feeding" program.

Several farm drainage demonstrations have been laid out in Rockcastle county.

Many Johnson county farmers pay grocery and other small bills from poultry profits.

KY. FARMERS USE TREES

Orders for approximately 1,000,000 forest trees have been filled for Kentucky farmers by the state forestry service during the past four months and thousands of additional trees have been ordered from private nurseries, according to estimates by the state office of the agriculture administration at Lexington.

These trees are being planted to meet soil conservation goals in connection with the agricultural conservation program, which makes available a special allotment of $30 for tree planting and other forestry practices for each cooperating farm.

So great was the demand for forest trees to be planted this spring that supplies of black locust, pine, and black walnut at the state forestry service nursery were exhausted.

Orders for 70,000 black locust seedlings were filled from the nursery stocks, and an additional 200,000 were supplied from sources outside the state. Orders were filled for 35,000 black walnuts and 10,000 pine trees.

Trees planted in cooperation with the conservation program are set on wasteland, hillsides and eroded areas, where their roots will check the formation of gullies and where their fallen leaves will prevent the flow of water and add humus to the soil.

It is required that they be planted and cared for according to good forestry practices.

WASHINGTON NOTES

Legislative

Expenses of the legislative branch of the government are taken care of in a $23,707,701 appropriation bill recently passed by the senate.

Bombers

The army has awarded a contract for fifty-two bombers, with a range of 3,000 miles and a speed of more than 225 miles an hour, with full bomb-load. The flying fortresses will cost $8,000,000.

Lynching Bill

While the judiciary committee of the senate has sent the controversial anti-lynching bill to the senate, sponsors indicate that they will not bring it up until the major appropriation bills are out of the way.

$3,000 for Town Clock

Winchester, Mass.—Annoyed at the inaccuracy of the present town clock, Henry F. Hunt, a magazine subscription collector, left the town the sum of $3,000 in his will to buy a new one, provided the town posted a $10,000 bond to keep the clock in repair.

Rivers and Harbors

Rivers and harbors and flood control projects continue to attract strong support in congress, with indications that even President Roosevelt's statement advising against further authorizations, may not be sufficient to hold the appropriation down to the $220,082,250 recommended by the budget.

Mistake Fatal

Pittsburg, Pa.—By mistake, Mrs. Naomi Ferguson, 38, used insect powder instead of flour in preparing pancakes for breakfast. Realizing they didn't look right, Mrs. Ferguson advised her husband not to eat them and only tasted a little piece of one herself. She became violently ill and died later in a hospital.

Dies Has Bill

Chairman Martin Dies of the house committee investigating un-American activities will sponsor a bill to require organizations with international affiliations to register with the state department and file their true membership lists. He says that he will ask the president to support the measure and he thinks that public sentiment for the bill will be too strong for congress to resist.

Industry

The decline in industrial activity this year, according to the commerce department has resulted from a decline in the rate of inventory accumulation. Consequently, the course of business during the next few months will depend on whether inventories are maintained or liquidated. In view of possible extraordinary demands, due to the war, it is thought that inventories may be maintained.

Hospitalization

A federal court of appeals has held that the veteran's administration is not obligated to supply free hospitalization to the 300,000 men who were called into service for a short time under the World War draft, only to be disqualified shortly thereafter for physical disabilities. These men, it was held, did not receive the "honorable discharge," which is prerequisite to hospitalization.

Labor Board Upheld

Refusal of the U. S. supreme court to review an order of the national labor relations board upholds its decision directing the Republic Steel corporation to reinstate 5,000 strikers and reimburse them with $5,000,000 in back pay. By declining to act, the supreme tribunal upheld a unanimous decision of the third circuit court of appeals that the company was guilty of unfair labor practices in the "Little Steel" strike in 1937.

7 Years of CCC

Nearly two and a half million young men have been enrolled in the four thousand separate CCC camps in the seven years of the organization's existence. In a letter praising this work, President Roosevelt pointed out that the camp members have planted more than 1,700,000,000 trees, constructed more than 100,000 miles of trails and minor roads, built 75,000 miles of telephone lines and spent 5,000,000 man-days fighting forest fires.

Alaskan Base

Army plans for a cold weather air training base at Anchorage, Alaska, received a set-back when the house appropriations committee cut down the war department's appropriation bill, removing the $12,734,060 provided for the project. General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, expresses regret over the elimination of the Anchorage air base which he said is in a long-range program and connected with Navy plans for the defense of the area.

BOB JONES' COMMENTS

One of the most significant movements in America is the uniting of Christian business men in most of the great centers, and even in many of the smaller centers, in an effort to get out the Gospel story in this day when so many ministers are either too busy building their ecclesiastical machine or too indifferent to the spiritual needs of the masses to keep the evangelistic fires burning. In olden times God used the priests. That was the regular process. Sometimes a prophet would appear. As a rule God called the prophet from the plow or the vineyard or from some other field of endeavor. The prophet usually came from some place where the people were not expecting a religious leader. The appearance of a prophet was a sign that things were not functioning right. There was a controversy between God and His people. In such times the priests usually took the side of the people. It was "like people, like priest." God called the prophet to take His side in the controversy. The people often turned against the prophet. But God was always with him. "If God be for us, who can be against us." This does not mean that people cannot be against us. It means it does not matter if they are against us. God is always greater and stronger than those who are lined up against His people.

There has been much opposition on the part of a certain type of more or less dead, some-what modernistic, professional-type preachers, against the Laymen's Evangelistic Movement throughout the country. This movement in a way is a condemnation of preachers who have no passion for souls. That explains the opposition. In New York, Boston, Seattle, San Francisco, Chicago, and in many of the smaller cities and towns where I have had the joy of working with these Christian business and professional men who have made up their minds that evangelism must not die, I have noted with great joy that the real, honest-to-goodness, orthodox, consecrated, Spirit-filled preachers not only endorse the work of the Christian men, but they are back of it with all the cooperation and support that they can give. You readers can always judge the spiritual attitude of a minister in your community by the way he responds to a movement of any kind that is built on the Word of God and is carried on by Christian men with the idea of winning people to Jesus Christ.

Flushing Swine

You probably think there is no importance in flushing brood sows. But there is. Some of you probably might ask what flushing a sow means. It means to have them in a gaining condition before breeding in order to increase the number of pigs.

The flushing should be done 3 or 4 weeks before breeding. In flushing you should feed a good protein feed such as tankage, or insected oil meal, and sometimes corn, or oats, or wheat is used. Use your judgment about the time and amount to feed.

Try flushing your brood sows and see if you don't have a larger pig production.—Reported by Ford Meadows, Member of F. F. A.

Breeding Swine

It is essential to mate the sow to the boar of good types. Every effort should be made to secure a boar that is strong in the points where the sow is weak, since the faults of either will show in the offspring. The sow and boar should be purebred. If the sow farrows in March the pigs will be ready to breed in November.

A breeding sow of the proper types

1. Is high and well arched in the back.

2. Stands squarely on straight legs of medium length.

3. Long, deep, and roomy of body.

4. Has wide open eye.

At the time of breeding the sow should be in a thrifty condition. For 10 to 15 days before breeding time the sow should be fed a well-balanced ration, which should increase her weight at the rate of 34 pounds a day. Experience shows that flushing has in some instances almost doubled the number of pigs per litter.

A good ration of corn and 1/4 to 1/2 pound of tankage or 6 to 8 pounds of skimmed milk daily, and the run of good pasture. During the period, if the sow is thin she should receive each day 2 to 3 pounds of grain for each 100 pounds she weighs.

In the fall or spring is a good time to sell swine. If you breed the sow in November she will farrow in March and the pigs will be ready to sell in August or September if properly fed. If you breed in May she will farrow in September and the pigs will be ready to sell in March or April if properly fed.—Wallace Hill, Member F. F. A.

Practices for Irish Potatoes

Improved Practices—

I. Soil

1. Select deep, well drained sandy loam soil, rich in humus.

2. If sod land, turn in fall or early winter. If a green manure crop has been sown turn ground in spring.

II. Fertilizer

1. Use green manure to supply an abundance of humus.

2. Use 750 to 1200 pounds 5:10 scattered in row per acre.

III. Seed

1. Select smooth true to type certified seed, free from disease which are not smaller than five nor larger than twelve ounces.

2. Treat seed potatoes to prevent scab and black scurf. Quick dip or corrosive sublimate are preferred.

3. Cut potatoes into plump pieces having not less than two or more than three eyes.

4. Spray to control black flea and Colorado beetle. A good solution is made by adding one tablespoon arsenic lead to one gallon water.

5. Plant potatoes 12 to 18 inches apart in rows 30-36 inches wide.

6. Potatoes should be planted between March 15 and April 15.

Practices for Strawberries

Improved Practices—

1. Select fertile well drained, sandy loam soil, rich in organic matter. A new ground is a very good place.

2. Use 400-500 pounds 1:3:1 ratio fertilizer.

3. Side dress in August with nitrate of soda to stimulate bud development.

4. Select the Premier, Aroma, or Blackmore variety.

5. Set the plants 12-15 inches apart in rows 30-36 inches wide.

6. Transplant strawberry plants March 1-April 10.

7. Cultivate when necessary to control weeds and conserve moisture.

8. Transplant each year.

9. Mulch in December with straw free from seeds.

10. Pick every day from time they begin to ripen.

11. To control crown borer, dip plants, wash roots, transfer to new location.

12. Remove flower buds from plants first season after transplanting so runners can produce rapidly.

"COW JUICE"

"Drink more milk" is sound dietary advice.

This is a country with an unequalled standard of living—but milk consumption by adults as well as children, is far below the level health experts believe advisable.

Various health organizations are working to stimulate milk consumption. And, on top of that, excellent work is being done by milk marketing cooperatives. These co-ops emphasize the value of milk—and they assure the consumer of a sanitary disease-free, high quality product. During the past few years, with the help of progressive farmers, immense progress has been made in the technique of milk production and handling.

More "cow juice" would mean better health for ninety-nine people out of a hundred.

Population

If present trends continue it is predicted that in 1980 the number of persons born in the United States will about balance those who die and our population will be stationary. Dr. Guy I. Burch estimates, however, that there will be 26,380,000 males of fighting age, between 20 and 45 years.

A CHAMPION'S ADVICE

Detroit, March 20.—"When common courtesy becomes a conscious practice of every motorist on the highways, traffic accidents will decrease." This is the considered opinion of a top-flight American driver, whose records on the speedway and the highway are known throughout the automotive world. Harry Hartz, formerly national champion race driver and now a test driver for Chevrolet Motor Division's commercial car department, has had an unusually wide range of experience behind the wheel.

Recently, Hartz established a new world record for sustained and certified automotive operation, driving a 1 1/2-ton truck more than 101,000 miles to set the new mark. The entire run, under sanction of the American Automobile Association, impartial judge of auto testing activities, was completed without so much as denting a fender.

In view of Hartz' perfect record during the more than 101,000 miles he drove the test unit, his views on safe driving may be taken as authoritative. Stressing the need for courtesy on the road, he explained the signal system by which truckmen endeavor to aid one another and also to advise passenger car drivers of their intentions.

"The average truck driver," he said, "appreciates the interchange of information from our fellow drivers, and tries in every way possible to advise them of conditions they are about to meet."

"He makes every effort to inform the passenger car driver of danger ahead—in the way of a crack-up, a narrow bridge, a restricted speed zone,—by signaling with the hand, in a 'wave-down' motion, which indicates that the oncoming driver should reduce speed and be on the alert for unusual conditions."

"However, since most of his driving is done at night, signals are usually made by manipulation of lights. Flashing the lights rapidly is the night-time 'wave-down.'"

"When a motorist approaching from the rear wishes to pass a truck, he should signal by means of his lights or his horn and then wait until the driver has blinked his trailer lights for the 'all clear' signal. The truckman will often indicate by his spotlight when the passenger car has cleared his unit and may safely cut back into the right-hand lane. Many drivers customarily honk a time or two as they pass, to thank the truckman—a friendly, courteous act that is appreciated."

"When two trucks approach a dangerous point from opposing directions at night—say a one-lane bridge—the driver who is nearer the bridge will indicate that he is coming through, by swinging his spotlight in an arc across the road and pulling out toward the center. The other driver then pulls well over, stops and dims for the unit coming ahead."

"Blinking of the trailer lights is also a stopping signal," Hartz said, "but motorists often confuse it with the passing signal. Other truckers can usually tell the driver's intentions but motorists rarely pay enough attention to do so. Likewise, blinking can indicate a turn, if the trailer carries no turn-indicators. Here again, the motorist must study the circumstances and decide what intention the trucker is trying to convey."

"There are two things in particular which the passenger car motorist can do to aid the truckman, and at the same time make for greater highway safety," Hartz asserted. "These are: more consideration in dimming, and paying greater heed to the flares and signals which truckers set out when their units are stopped along the roadside. When a truck stalls on a hill, or has met with an accident and is stopped, flares must be set out, according to law. Obviously, these signals are set for some good reason, and the motorist who thoughtlessly comes on through without diminishing speed endangers not only himself but others as well."

"More than 90% of the driving done by the transport drivers of the country is night operation," he said. Since the records show that traffic mishaps increase after sunset, his plea for greater care after dark is particularly fitting."

"Employ the same care and consideration that you would if you were walking down a crowded street," Hartz urged, "and highway accidents will decrease immediately."

NOTE TO CORRESPONDENTS

If you are listed as a regular correspondent to the Courier, we will furnish you with free envelopes and paper for use in reporting news, providing you call for same at our office. Supplies will not be sent by mail.

Regular correspondents are expected to report every week if possible, or whenever you have any news worth reporting. Visits among neighbors are not news except on special occasions. Reports of visitors to or from other communities should include the postoffice addresses of the visitors and the visited.

Report all births, deaths, weddings, funerals, celebrations, visits to and from a distance, serious fires and accidents, and other happenings which you think would be of general news interest. In each case, give all the information that you think most people would like to read: the kind of information that you yourself desire from other correspondents with regard to happenings in their communities. Better write too much than not enough: remember that if necessary the editor can cut out unnecessary details, but he cannot add information that you fail to report.

Your name must appear on every news letter you send us, but will not be published unless you so request. Unsigned letters are thrown quickly into our big wastebasket.

The loyal cooperation of all correspondents will help to make the Courier a newsworthy newspaper.

Correspondents who fail or neglect to report regularly will be removed from our list to make room for better reporters.

We now have openings for correspondents at several different places in the county. If you know anyone at one of these places who you believe is capable and would like to be a Courier correspondent, tell him or her to call at our office if interested.

The places where we need correspondents are: Blaze, Demund, Ebon, Elna, Forest, Cannel City, Ezel, Lizzie, Omer, and Williams.
